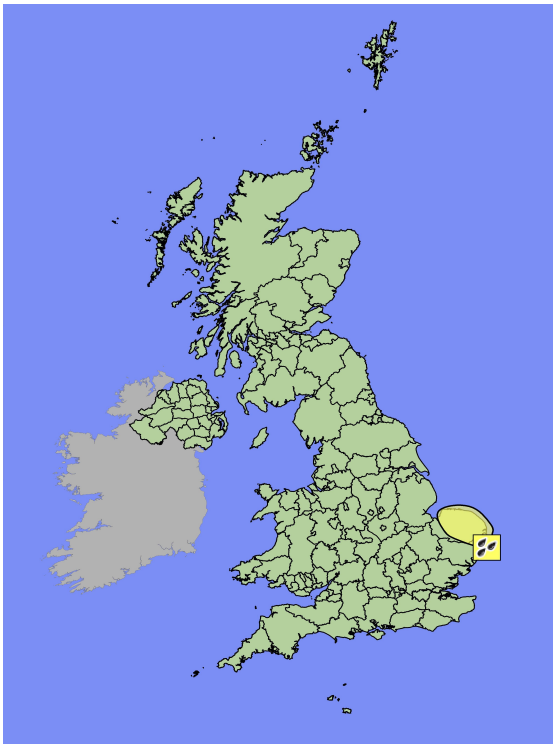
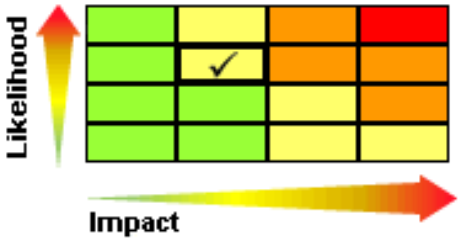
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
An occluded weather front will be slow moving across northern parts of East Anglia during Saturday, with a further 15-25 mm of rain likely in addition to that which has already fallen. As colder air comes southwestwards, the rain will turn to sleet and snow, particularly inland later in the day.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Rain

Valid from 09:50 on Sat, 09th Mar 2013 until 21:00 on Sat, 09th Mar 2013

Rain will be persistent and at times heavy during Saturday, turning increasingly to sleet and snow later. The public are advised to be aware of the risk of further localised surface water flooding.
